Leah A. Jacobson

MA, IBCLC
Founder & CEO, The Guiding Star Project
International Speaker and Author of
Wholistic Feminism: Healing the Identity Crisis Caused by the Women's Movement

BIO:

Hailing from central Minnesota, Leah has been working with young people and mothers since 2000. Leah founded The Guiding Star Project in 2011 after feeling called to help women and families by providing resources that honor Natural Law and promote wholistic feminism. She seeks to create Guiding Star Centers to serve as beacons of hope, joy, and truth — safe havens that uphold human dignity in all stages of life. Leah lives in Minnesota with her family and works as a board-certified lactation consultant. As a mother to seven children, she has a special interest in supporting young women as they transition into their roles as new mothers. Her first book, Wholistic Feminism was published in June 2021 and is available at lumenpress.org.

THE BOOK:
WHOLISTIC FEMINISM

This is the first book from author, Leah A. Jacobson, MA, IBCLC published by Lumen Press in June 2021. In Wholistic Feminism, you will see how the American women's movement has defined success in a way that keeps us striving, yet never fully arriving. You will learn to see female contributions in a new light and realize that you are not inadequate. You, and your female body were never the problem! Author Leah A. Jacobson will help you find common ground and connection with other women so that you can celebrate sisterhood with other women, not competition. In accepting and loving your feminine gifts, you will discover how worthy you are of blazing your own trail and you will be empowered to create a life of meaningful contribution. It is time for the women's movement to be whole.
